A successful applicant must demonstrate that he or she:

- is successfully addressing issues that affect the community's well-being; and
- would benefit from an intensive two-week nonprofit management training course in New York.

The residency takes place June 7–June 22, 2017 in New York City. Airfare, accommodation, food, transportation, instruction, and other program-related expenses are included in the fellowship, and participants receive a small stipend upon arrival. During the intensive two-week residency, Ford Fellows take classes in areas including nonprofit management strategy and leadership with faculty from Columbia University and Yale University. The academic curriculum is complemented by visits to model nonprofits in New York City and meetings with academic, business, and government leaders. The experience is enhanced by Fellows' residency at 92nd Street Y, a global American Jewish community and cultural center founded in 1874 that annually serves over 300,000 people of all national, ethnic, religious, racial, and socio-economic backgrounds.
